HARVARD'S PROSPECTIVE ASTRO-NOMICAL STATION IN ARIZONA.

An Expedition Now Exploring the Southwest For a Site For an Observatory Similar to the Ose Maintained by Harvard at Arequipa, Peru.

Through the liberality of Mr. Percival Lowell, a wealthy Bostonian, Harvard university is about to establish a new astronomical station in Arizona similar to the one it now maintains at Arequipa, Pern. For several years Professor Edward C. Pickering, who is the director of Harvard's astronomical department, has entertained the belief that an observatory somewhere in the southern Rocky mountains would be productive of good results, and he has frequently expressed the hope that such a station would be established, though the necessary funds were not available from the university's regular sources of revenue, and it seemed unlikely that they would be forthcoming from anywhere else.

It takes a good deal of money to build, equip and maintain such an observatory, at least $50,000 being required the first year. But Mr. Lowell's generosity contemplates the expenditure of even more than that if necessary, so the financial difficulty may be considered entirely settled. He takes something more than a mere financial interest in the project, too, and is a member of the expedition which is now exploring southern Arizo-

PROFESSOR W. H. PICKERING. na in search of the best possible location for the observatory. He is a devoted astronomer and the author of several valuable astronomical books.

Professor William 7. Pickering, a brother of Director Paering, is in command of the exploring party and will be at the head of the new establishment. It was he who managed the expedition to Peru and established the observatory at Arequipa, and he has had years of valuable astronomical experience. In 1887 he was in charge of a party which spent several days on the summit of Pike's peak, making observations at the altitude of 14,000 feet, the highest ever attained by astronomical observers with a telescope. He is especially interested in telescopic photography and has achieved some famous results in that line at the Peruvian observatory.

"The new station," the professor said just before leaving Cambridge, "is intended principally for visual work, while in the near future only photographic work is to be carried on at Arequipa. The Eruce photographic telescope, which has an aperture of 24 inches, we are testing here, and within a few months it will be shipped to Paru, where a regular system of photographing the heavens will be begun.

"Our work here at Cambridge will be greatly facilitated by the ease of communication with the Arizona station, and we can better trace certain phenomena at each point. Then, too, a larger amount of the regular investigation can be better carried on at the new station than here because of the atmospheric conditions. Of course we shall work out plans here, but we shall seek their verification at the station.

"Arizona was decided on because that section of the country is moderately high, and the air is dry. We were not looking for height alone, for what we want most is dry atmospheric conditions. Pike's peak I found by personal observations to be no better than here. Often there are many successive nights when satisfactory observations cannot be made here, and I think the same is true at most observatories located in large cities. Then, too, the powerful electric currents used for lighting and the high tension

"There Liust be a change in the sites of observatories. In the past it has nearly always been the case that large telescopes were erected near capitals of countries or near large universities instead of in places where the meteorological conditions would permit of attaining the best results.

"The conditions of climate which render a city or country great are often those most unfavorable to astronomical work. The climate of western Enrope and the eastern portion of the United States is not suited to good astronomical work, and yet these are the sections where nearly all the large observatories of the world are situated. Among the exceptions to this rule that I note are the observatories of California and Illinois, the Lick and the Yerkes stations.

"It has not been the policy of Harvard college observatory to attempt to obtain a large telescope to be erected in Cambridge because of the bad climatic conditions. It was on this account that a station was established for this observatory near Arequipa at an altitude of more than $,000 feet, and now the new one in Anzona we hope to locate at an altitude of some 4,000 feet.

"The special reason for hurrying this expedition and getting the station in working order is the opposition of Mars next summer. Two years ago Mars was near the catth, but faither south, and we made some valuable observations at our Arequipa observatory. This coming summer Mais cours near the earth again, but right feller with, and our Arizora station will be just right for the observation." The Peddler Tells You, possibly, that Pearline is too good for ordinary uses; he says, "of course it's nice enough for delicate things, but what I have is just as good for scrubbing, scouring, etc., and is cheaper." Now, we say this: Pearline is the best to use for everything, and the best is the cheapest, in the end. It does its work better-more easily, more quickly, more satisfactorily, more safely. Pearline is cheap enough for any use. These imitations are dear at any price and for almost any purpose. Compare the value of the things ruined with the small amount of money saved by the use of cheap powders. Send When peddlers or unscrupulous grocers tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline," IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if it Back your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 384 JAMES PYLE, New York.

MY LITTLE GIRL.

Of course the little girl was just as much of mine as hers. But somehow when our wedded life got full of pateks and bars.
I told her that she'd better take the little one and go And stay a spell at Newton Creek along with Uncle Joe,

While I'd go off to some far land, and there I'd work and hye
Until I'd quite made up my mind which one was to forgive.

I tell you pride's an awful thing when it gets into the heart; I guess it was a thousand times I thought I'd rise and start And go right after ber and that little maid of mine. I never heard a word from them. She never wrote a line.

Then I had a spell of sickness and counted through my tears
And found I hadn't seen them both for more than fifteen years.

Oh, my pretty, laughing darling, she must be tall and fair! How I'd rig berout in ribbons and feathers rich and rare!

could almost feel my fingers upon her soft white brow: That little sunny head of hers would touch my shoulder now. Yet the strangest thing-in all my dreams she was a little child, With the yellow curls of babyhood and big eyes, round and mild. As soon as I was better I started on my way And reached the town at acontime one hot and dusty day.

And near by, in the churchyard, I stopped to rest and want.

There was a little haby's grave close to the mold ring gate. pushed aside a straggling vine, kind o' curious-no more. Great God, my little girl lay there, dead thirteen years before.

Is the Oleander Poisonous?

Whether locality has anything to do with it or not has not yet been definitely settled, but certain it is that in certain portions of the country the cleander, so much admired for its exquisite blossoms, has been the cause of serious illness, and in some cases death has been attributed to a too intimate association with it. Several persons were attacked with exceedingly painful throat lisorders, with headache, giddiness and violent heart agitation. The dispensatories class it as a heart poison, and one of its victims died in the most distressing heart convulsions. Animals are affected by it as well as man. A valuable horse died a few moments after browsing on the stalks and leaves. Several cows died from drinking water into which some cuttings of the plant had been thrown, and other animals were very sick from inhaling the smoke from burning twigs and ler of this plant. They were shut in a small yard, and a breeze carried the smoke directly toward them. In other localities there seem to be no serious consequences attending the cultivation of this plant. Whether immediate surroundings or climatic conditions have anything to do with the effects of this popular house plant would turnish an interesting subject for discussion. - New York Ledger.

When Apparently Freezing.

Do not take a person severely chilled or apparently frozen into a warm room to be treated. The first thing to do, if he condition requires it, is to attempt artificial respiration as in "drowning." Rub the limbs very gently with snow or cloths wrung out of cold water until good circulation is established. Give stimulants in small quantities at a time as soon as the patient can swallow. When fully restored, warm the room very gradually, cover the patient with warm blankets and give beef tea or hot milla For the treatment of frozen hands, feet or any portion of the body the same principles apply. Rub slowly and very gently with srow or clotbs wrong out of cold water while the numbness lasts. Then, if the case is severe enough to require further treatment, consult a physician .- New York

"Sissy" Reed.

When Thomas B. Reed was a boy, so a story goes, he used to put on a big apron and help his mother with the housework, which affolded much amusement to the other urchins of Portland, who were fond of calling him "rissy." One day he was churning, while the boys stood about guying him. He finished the job and then took off his apron and thrashed half a dozen of them. That was the last heard of "sissy."-Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Rubber Buckets.

The application of india rubber to buckets to render them noiseless has been successfully tried in Great Britain. The bottom, the ears and the 'bail" are all protected. The bottom of the pail has three round disks of rubber clamped on at the edges, and they can be readily removed and replaced. The ears are of india rubber, while the 'bail" has a single disk encircling it, which answers the purpose. - Ez-

THE INSUMNIA RECORD.

An Indiana Farmer Sets the Mark High and Puzzles the Physicians.

Since the case of George Woodruff, the Rossville (Ind.) farmer, has been made public through newspaper accounts of his strange affliction numerous inquiries are being received from medical men in all parts of the country. Mr. Woodruif is a substantial farmer, well known in his and adjoining coun-

Some two menths ago upon retiring as usual at night he found himself unable to skep. Woo it as he would, sleep would not come. The next night be was also unable to sleep, but feit no worse for his wakefulness. For two months he has gone with less than an hear's sleep. On the third night a physician was called, but even under the influence of opiates Woodruff refused to close his eyes. The only thing which conquered his aliment was a quart of whisky, taken in rapid doses, and that only produced a half hour's sleep. Then his attending physician gave up the job, confessing his inability to fathorn the mysterious ailment. He had heard of people sleeping indefinitely, but here was a case of a man who couldn't sleep at all, and who was apparently none the worse off because of it. Several other medical men took a hand at Woodruff, but each was in turn baffled.

Woodruff complains only of a slight distress in his stomach, but his appetite is unimpaired, and he attends to his duties as he did previous to breaking the record as a man who defied ordinary rules of nature and to whom it was all the same whether it was night or day. About three years ago he had a similar attack, but it lasted only a week.

Reports of his strange disease became current several days ago, but they were discredited. To satisfy all doubters Woodruff has made a statement of the truth of the reports. His physician and family declare that he has slept less than an hour in two months, and that all his faculties are unimpaired. His physician will make extensive comments on the case for several medical journals.-St. Louis Republic

GREATEST IN THE WORLD.

Kiralfy's Projected London Amusement Park Will Cost a Million,

Imre Kirally is at the head of a company of English capitalists which proposes to take a long lease of Earl's court, in the west end of London, and build one of the greatest amusement parks in the world. The plan for the enterprise is outlined by Charles B. Atwood, the Chicago architect who designed the Art building and other structures of the fair. He has just returned from London, where he has been assisting Mr. Kiralfy. It is proposed to produce a replica of the Court of Honor as it appeared at the World's fair. The reproduction is to be exact and on a scale of one-third. The lagoon, the Mac-Monnies and electrical fountains, the peristyle and the facades of all the buildings bounding the court will ap-

Arrangments will be made to reproduce all the grand electric light effects on fete nights. Other features of the amusement park will be a Ferris wheel, 50 feet larger in diameter than the one at Jackson park; a theater capable of seating 10,000 people, in which will be produced "America," and a large hippodrome, such as are conducted in Paris. Over $1,000,000 will be expended in the work of construction. -Chicago Journal.

TAKE PART OF THE TIPS.

Grievance of the Paris Waiters Which Is Considered Just Grounds For a Strike.

There is much dissatisfaction among Parisian waiters, and a general strike among them has been spoken of. It is estimated by their trade society that there are 40,000 of them out of work, and the men contend that the masters take advantage of this to cut down their earnings. Practically, fixed wages are unknown. The men pay so much to the masters in proportion to the business they do. Thus in great cases on the boulevards they have to pay at the cash desk the full selling price of whatever they serve plus 5 percent. In some cases, it is said, the rate Les been increased of late to 61% and even 71% per cent. Of course this percentage represents a portion of their gratuities, which they have to give up.

In Paris the general rule is for customers to give 'tipe' at the rate of a halfpenny for every 10 pence expended. This is at the rate of 5 per cent, which would show a loss to the waiter of 21/2 per cent on the larger percentage. In practice, however, the tips are higher, as no one gives less than a penny, however small the purchase, and some customers, of course, give more than the recognized minimum,-London News.

Borrible Abuse of Children,

A horrible disclosure has been made in Biskipitz, Austria, by the arrest of a gang of men who for some time have been engaged in crippling children for the begging trade. Several unfortunate children were found in the house with their legs and arms broken and bound in positions of deformity. One little girl had both eyes gouged out. Instruments which had been used in producing physical deformities were discovered in the cellar. After the children, who had been stolen, were sufficiently deformed they were sold to other persons for begging purposes.—Vienna Letter, Alarming Symptoms.

A patient who was very ill and under the treatment of his medical adviser was a strong temperance advocate and a total abstainer. His physician prescribed stimulants, which, on general principles, the patient refused to take on the ground that the example would be very injurious to his servants and his attendants.

The physician said: "My dear sir, you must take the stimulants. You can ask the servants to bring you warm water to your room for shaving. You can have the other there."

The patient did so. Next morning when the doctor called and inquired about his patient the servant said: "Ob, doctor, I am so glad you have come! I am afraid the patient is going out of his mind. He keeps calling for warm water for shaving."—Boston Herald.

Looming Mirages. In what are called "looming mirages" distant objects show an apparent extravagant increase in height withont alteration in breadth. Distant pinnacles of ice are thus magnified into immense towers or tall, jagged mountains, and a ship thus reflected from far out at sea may appear to be 12 or 15 times as tall as it is long. Rocks and trees are also shown in abnormal shapes and positions, while houses, animal and human beings appear in like exaggerated shapes. Before the sandy plains of our southwestern states and territories were converted into verdant fields by the ingenuity and tireless energy of man mirages were very common in those regions, the Indians regarding the phenomenon as being the work of evil *pi:its.-Et. New Bedford's Mill Strikers.

New Bedford, Mass., March 29 The strike at the Wamsutta mills is growing more serious daily. Last night when the mills closed a crowd of strikers armed with red flags, bearing the words "Scab" and "Knobstick," surrounded the gates and flaunted the provoking signals in the faces of the workmen. No violence was attempted, however, as the police were on the alert. There is no sign of a settlement of the difficulty.

THURSDAY, MARCE SO, 1884.

A Merid sportal, these Weekle ways that the President is see ing the appointment of Public Printet and that Hon. Thee, B. Benedi of Ellenville, will be negred within a week. It is to be hoped that the report is true. The appointment of a successor to Public Frience Palmor, whose term expired a year ago, has been too long delayed.

The Senate, yesterday, confirmed the nominations of five New York postmesters. There are still nearly nity New York post office nominetions hung up in the Senate, some of which have been pending since Decomber, on which action is delay because the nominations are not exactly to David B. Hill's liking.

Mrs. Martin, mother of Scale Martie, the young girl who was murdered and mutilated in New York, last week, has dreemed that her daughweek, has drawned that not unuga-ter was killed by a women with whom she quarreled, less summer. The police haven't as yet arrested the mardeness revealed in Mrs. Mus-pin's drawn, but it affords them just me much of a city to the mystary of this awful orims as any of the socolled facts that have been learned by the soure of detectives who have been working on the case.

The New York and Mew Jerser Bridge bill, which has just been introduced in Congress by Mr. Dusphy. of New York, has been very carefully draws to most all the abjections urged by the President in his veto of the original bill. The erection of the bridge is demanded by the business and commercial interests of New York olty, of the suburban district and of the Great West as well. Private interests should not be allowed to stand in the way and the bill should be passed at once that work on the bridge may be begun at the earliest possible date.

President Cleveland's veto of the Bland Seignlorage bill justifies the faith which the best continent of the country had in his courage and his devotion to the principles of sound finance. His objections to the bill are strongly put and he employs a very apt simile when he likens the couptry to a comvalencent patient. The illustrom which the country is suffering are the result of too much silver and when confidence and prosperity are being rapidly regained, be insists It would be arrent folly to attempt to hasten the process of recovery by dosing the petient with the sestrum that made it sick almost upto death.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, a woman who devotes much of her time to direct. sor the affairs of the universe, marshalled sixteen New England young women under the banner of "Protection." and took them down to ton to tell the members of the Senate Fingues Committee of the ress mounthord that would come in particular, if the Wilcon bill beme a low. There is nothing that deed bee exempted as deed thines in putilepsis, and whee Song-ing Vosthers board that Mrs. Poster and her "army" proposed to lay alogo to the Finance Committee be fied from the Capitol. Scantor Han-zis was sweeped down on by Mrs. Featur before he could get out of the building, but he barriended himself in the room of the Finance Committoo and sent word to the wamen who had come to plend for "protective," that the committee had voted to give no public bearings on the tails bill and that so for so he was concerned he proposed to stand by the decises of the committee. Mrs. Forthe and her protegre chased Benators The annual appropriation bill was and Representatives about the Capitol all day and in the sygning bere down on Senator Voorbess at his houre, but it was in vale,—the wily Indiana statemen was "out."

The selection of Rev. Valler Sylwester Malons, of Brooklyn, formerly, of Tries, County Mosth, Ireland, as the Republican condidate for member of the Beard of Ma. g-ntr of the University of New Yorkhas called forth much adverse orth et-m and harth comment. The old fashioned way is, make them yourself. Then your label on them means something. That's the way we do. The other way is to buy them "factory made," and slap your label on. You might as well endorse a note without seeing the face of it! For instance, when we: say our Beef, Wine and Iron is as good as it is possible to make it. it's because we KNOW it is so. Why, the wine (Imported Sherry) in it alone costs more than the finished product of some other brands. The same with our Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. It's a true Emulsion-NOT A SOAP-and the oil is the finest obtainable and in inst the condition to be readily taken by a delicate stomach. Then our Sarsapariila, "Nature's Tonic," We make it-make it from the actual crude drugs. We could buy something for less money, but the quality would be lacking. It we say IT'S OURS, it IS OURS with a record of 26 years to back it up.

FORMISHINGS. LADIES'

This cut shows that most celebrated and beautiful of all French Corsets—the P. D. This Corsets, we believe, the best and most popular of the French Corsets, and wearers of line corsets who have used them refuse to use any other. Certainly the manufacturer has reached the highest point of perfection in shape, finish and lit. It is made to give, as no other corset can, a gracefulness of outline to the figure through its tendency to reduce the size and give a lengthening effect to the waist. We have them in FIVE DIFFERENT STILES of White, Drab and Black, all made of the finest linen couti.

THE CONDUCTORS' BALL-

Millard Division, O. R. C., Entertains Its Friends A Grand Good Time for

The annual ball of Millard Division, Order of Railway Conductors, was held at the Casino, last evening, and it is not too much to say that there has been no more successful scelal evect in this city in a long time.

The conductors long since learned how to entertain their friends and have constantly improved with practice until it is now regarded as a special privilege to be permitted to attend the Conductors' ball.

The Casino last evaning was crowded, many persons being present as spectators, while the dancers were so numerous that the floor was always filled.

The West Point orchestra of ten pieces furnished the music and it was such music as is rarely given in Middletown. A concert was given by the orches-which was thoroughly enjoyed by the many spectators present. The following selections were rendered: Overture—1492 Pflurger

Intermezzo—Naila Delibes
Selection—Robin Hood Ponchinell
Panish Fandango—El Picadore Laurendean
Selection—A trip to Chicato n Gaunt
Patrol—The passing regiment Coverly

tra before dancing commenced,

The grand march, which was an unusually good one with many new and intricate figures, was led by Mr. C. E. Weisz and Mrs. J. E. Brazie.

A very fine supper was served in the Casino banquet hall by a New York caterer. There is but one opinion regarding the Conductors' ball, to-day, and given in the city. To the following committees the success of the affair was due:

O. P. Kirby, G. S. Uarpenter, E. F. Massey.

Floor Committee—Geo. W. Wortman, Chairman, Wm. Douglas, W. H. Kirby, Wm. Faulkner, C. A. Dewitt, J. Lee, Reception Committee—James E. Brazee, Chairman, A. E. Luddington, A. H. Corwin, Geo. F. Close, C. E. Weisz, R. S. Adgate.

A PORTRAIT.

You cannot trace t'. i linness now, old fellow! I should have incl the trace To die while I look of the way and not ruin My youthful scraph's face!

It looks as if I meant to set forth straightway To seek the holy gr. i. Perbaps it did. I only found o'er all things The serpent's deadly trail.

It does seem out of place among the portraits Of Irad, fair women here. A halo'd make a time saint's picture of it? Ah, now, my boy, you jeer!

You're thinking in your heart how many halos Would make a saint of me. Contess, you cannot torce yourself to grasp it That I was ever be.

Well, yes, a skull and crossbones would be checiful Compared with that boy's face. It's the Egyptian's death's head at the revels We have up in this place.

I could have given them points, those old Egyptians. I'm sure a man's dead soul Is cerier to have around at banquets Beside the flowing bowl

Than any grinning skull they ever put there! Confound his living eyes! Drink to him, Jack! We'll give him that much reason

For all their shocked surprise.

J. E. S. in New York Sun.

IT WAS A DREAM.

Mrs. Warrenton sat in her little blue and white parlor in a beruffled white muslin, her blond hair in a classic knot, her blue eyes filled with well bred ennui and her feet in coquettish blue and white canvas slippers idly prodding the lazy old Maltese tabby lying just out of range of the rocker.

Mrs. Warrenton sighed deeply and looked at her guest sideways. "Good gracious, Bob, you are enough to provoke a saint!" she broke out, with sudden petulance.

"If you were anything but the great dull boy that you are," continued his hostess aggrievedly, "you would see that I am dying of stagnation. You're the only interesting person I know, and now you come here and talk about the hot weather and look out of the window and don't offer an original suggestion or a new idea when I'm fairly verging on intellectual starvation. Do something, say something or go home!"

"The weather is too warm for much mental energy, but I think if you fanned me for five minutes I might evolve a thought. I'd go home only it's shut up for the summer, and I'm sick of the club, and you are the only available amusement."

Mrs. Warrenton arose majestically, possessed herself of a large palm leaf fan and began fanning the thinker.

"You're sure you're thinking? Don't dare to go to sleep!" she exclaimed as the brows unknitted into peaceful serenity. "Time's up!"

Mr. Vinton unclosed his eyes and sat bolt upright. "You look," said he irrelevantly, 'like a Dresden china shepherdess in all those white ruffles and pink ribbon. Puton the big hat with pink roses, and you can play Phyllis." "Is that all you've thought out?"

"No," continued Bob radiantly. 'I've thought further. You play Phyl lis, and I'll be Strephon, and we'll go to Arcadia."

"Suppose, Bob, you should tip me

"Strephon, remember, Strephon!" prompted Bob as he paddled out slowly into the stream in the red glow of the sunset skies.

"Well, Strephon, then!" and Mas. Warrenton dabbled her finger tips in the water and forgot to repeat her question. "I didn't know the Charles was so beautiful. What's all that green bank and bridges and shady nookery up there?" "Arcadia," said Bob sententiously. Mrs. Warrenton leaned back, nestled her pretty head against the shawls and looked picturesque.

Mr. Vinton paddled industriously and gazed straight ahead toward his destina-

"All right, Strephon, but what shall we talk about?" "Do you remember, Phyllis, the afternoon I taught you to skate out on the marshes? And going home in the early dark winter afternoon you slipped on the ice and hurt your ankle and criedyou were only a girl of 13 then—what a pretty girl, though!—and I put my arm around you and helped you home and kissed you a sweetheart kiss in the basement vestibule. That was a good many years ago, Phyilis." "You were a nice boy, Strephon, but you were always bold," said Mrs, Warrenton. And then she added, with a touch of coquetry, "Would you believe it, I've the valentine you sent me—the ADAMANT'' WALL PLASTER! Cheap Substitute for Common Plaster.

It is very hard and very adhesive; it does away with the warping and shrinkage of doors and coaings, and the building is not saturated with water, as it necessarily must be when comment plaster is used; it costs originally but little mere than lime plaster, and in the end its superior qualities make it immeasurably despert; it save waiting several weeks or months for the buildings to dry out; it does not crack or fall offsets in the case of leakage; it is applied asaly any good plasterer; it is the only material with which repairing can be done neatly and to stay.

branches he seized the paddle viciously and paddled into a little inlet overhung with shade.

Mrs. Warrenton leaned over and laid mo hand timidly on the brown muscuar one still grasping the paddle.

"People are never cross in Arcadia," she normared.

"I wish you'd be in earnest," he broke out passionately, "and not treat me as if I were a boy. You're too con-foundedly cold blooded. No—well that doesn't sound pretty-but I mean make believe you're human. You've altyays kept me at arm's length—just far though so you could pull at my heartstrings when it amused you"-he broke off suddenly-"1'm a brute."

"No, Strephon, you're a true hearted, hot headed boy, flying off on a tangent one day and repenting the next," said

Mrs. Warrenton gently.

"As it is, Phyllis, why don't you offer to be a sister to me?" he suggested whimsically, smiling. "Would you mind if I talked to you about myself a little? Or may be you won't care to hear. But this is the last time we'll be in Arcadia together, and though it will do no good I wanted you to understand.

knew how much you have done for me, boy and man. I loved you when you were a slip of a girl in short dresses and braids, and I said to myself: 'She is good and pure. I will try to deserve her, and then I will win her.' "But I didn't win you. That was a

"I have come regularly to you to be teased and smiled at, and you have never seemed to realize what your lightest look or word was to me.

"I have been kept from the follies and vices that have tempted me chiefly by the thought, 'I will not deserve to lose her respect.

"I used to dream of a life with you as its inspiration.

"And so as I find I can never love any other woman, and that my love for you might make me forget all things else and make you hate me some day, so I have asked a nice little girl to marry me. She does not want my love particularly, but my income and position, and her family and my family think it a good match. It is an experiment, and I—I am the most unhappy of men." There was a long silence when he had finished speaking—a monotonous silence punctuated with the regular plash of his paddle and echoes of laughter and oar strokes from the rowers abroad on the river.

He guided the boat about a shadowy bit of island and then paddled slowly along the homeward stretch of waters. "You see, I am a mad fool, Phyllis," he whispered, "but you are so cold, so calm, so far above me, it surely could not hurt you for mere pity to let me dream tonight.'' "Strephon," she sighed and touched his sleeve lightly with her finger tips, 'wouldn't it be happiness if we could be born again into another sort of world out of these social tangles and sordid limitations—into a simpler, honester world? "We've lived too long in this artificial world and grown used to the pate de foie gras, and theater parties, and the symphony, and the society, and Paris gowns, and English tailors, and summers at Newport, and autumns at Lenox, and

But I'm a woman of the world, and my heart is hard maybe, and I'm frivolous maybe, and I flirted with you to pass the time maybe—but, Strephon, you are a man of the world, too, and I never thought you had a heart." The miles of water were swept back slowly by the paddle. The little bark swept on with the tide; the boathouse was in view in the shadows.

Suddenly he put down the paddle. He leaned forward and groped for her hands with his, and as he classed them the trembling fingers closed. his with an impulse of strength seeking.

Bending closely, he saw her face. Her eyes were wet with tears. "Forgive me," he pleaded hoursely;

That year there was an item in a New York paper to the elies that the manager of a ciub took the pitcher into a room after the game was ever and severely punished him for his mistakes. The pitcher is not the only sufferer. The unpire suffers at the hands of both sides.

The poor umpire is ont on the ball ground. There is a limp to his gait, and he carries a case. He is an old ver, and he played a right lively game before he was woulded. The ball struck him ou the kneems, and when he was discharged from the benefits he was placed on the retired list.

"What are you doing now?"

The man at the bet made three stripes, and the enterer has thrown the hall to finit beas.

M. Calino was greatly disturbed because the city authorities changed the numbers of the houses in his street and roundly depounsed the tractionaries who had forced him by this simple change of figures to live at 636 instead of 916. But one morning as he came down to breakfast and took up his paper he exclaimed:

"Goodness, I was all wrong! What a fortunate thing that our number was changed!"

"Middletonn Red Men Outdone-A Mean Trick - Difference Between the Old Novel and the New - More Scared Than Burt.

When Middletown's Red Men named their tribe Paughcaughpaughsingue it was believed that they had reached the extreme possibilities of nomenclature and that no men could be found who would attempt a worse combination of letters and syllables. It seems, however, that the Red Men of Plainfield, N. J., are so charmed with the big name, that they have adopted it and made it worse than it really is by dividing it up into four words and writing it Paugh Caugh Naugh Sinque.

A Minnesota newspaper man has discovered that there are possibilities of humor in barbed wire. This is the way in which he puts it: "A mean man lives in Murray county. The other night, before retiring, he put barbed wire into his pantaloon pockets. And now his wife wears three fingers in bandages."

The London Mulion answers the question "What is the difference between the old novel and the new." in this very pat way: In the old novel they marry in the last chapter and live happily afterward; in the who doesn't happen to be very busy these days, was dozing in an easy chair near a window of his house in the northern part of the city, a day or two ago. Some of the neighbors' boys were shooting with a Flobert rifle in a lot a short distance away and the pop, pop of the rifle, as it reached the ears of the sleeper, was too faint to rouse him from his slumber, but was still distinct enough to makes him conscious of what was going on. A small boy, in the yard of the next house, was amusing himself by throwing clamshells, when the high wind, catching one of the youngster's boomerang-like missiles, bore it against the window by which the sleeper sat and with such force that a pane of glass was shattered. The crash of falling glass roused the sleeper and the sound of the rife having been the last thing that had impressed itself on his sleep clouded brain, he jumped at the conclusion that a stray rifle bullet had shattered the window, and although none of the broken glass had come near him, his fright was such that he was certain he had been shot. He alarmed wife by his cries of "I'm shot" and "I'm killed," and she, thoroughly frightened, alarmed the neighborhoed, and then it was that the mother of the clam shell throwing small boy marched him in by the ear and reassured the frightened man and his frightened wife by explaining that instead of being hit by a rifle ball it was only a case of being "scart at a clam shell."

THE PROPOSED CHARTER AMEND-

The Application Sent to Albany Today.-It Will Doubtless Pass Both Houses of the Legi-lature

- Several years ago the Anuva began to oppose the old methods of making the appropriations for city expenses and we had the satisfaction of seeing the secret ballot adopted by the people and at the same time a marked reduction in the amount of the appropriations.

A natural outcome of the agitation of the question of a reform in the matter of appropriations was the appointment of a committee to revise the city charter, so as to provide for the appropriation of a sum sufficient to defray the necessary expenses of the city and the voting of all special sums asked for by ballot as is done in most other cities.

It will be remembered that the committee appointed by Mayor Bailey to do this work reported at a special meeting of the Common Council, Saturday night, at which time the Council voted to give the Mayor power to review the estimates of the Council and veto any objectionable items, thereby placing the responsibility for city expenses practically upon the Mayor. To-day, the revision of the charter proposed by the committee was signed by all the members, the May-Cancell and City Clerk, and was sent to Assemblyman Doan at Albany, and we may expect that the proposed amondment will be promptly passed.

A TYPE OF NOBLE MANHOOD. Mr. Vanumee's Graceful Tribute to the Memory of the Late Rev. Dr. Van

The current number of the Beacon Light, published by the Brick Church, Montgomery, contains the following glowing tribute to the memory of the late Rev. Dr. VanZandt, from the graceful pen of William Vanamee, Esq , of this city :

Vanamee, 153q, of this city:

It was my high privilege to come into relations with the Brick Church and parsonage under circumstances, which made a deep impression upon my mind and which have ever since invested them with a tender and a sacred interest. I was a guest in the home of Rev. Dr. VanZandt upon many occasions. Never shall I forget the gentleness and the courtesy get the gentleness and the courtesy with which he uniformly received me. His manner was marked by a grace, a charm, a beauty, a refinement which, in some men, would have indicated extensive intercourse with the highest forms of social life, but which in his case, was the result of innate delicacy and elevation of character. Not indeed that he had not mingled freely with the most cultured classes of society. Before he came to the parsonage he had spent several years in the South and it would perhaps have been strange if the courtliness, the polish and the sase of the Virginian gentleman of the old school had not insensibly influenced and affected the manners of Dr. Van Zandt. But the real secret that was the product of neither Virginla nor New York. But though he was fitted to shine new novel they marry in the first in the most exclusive circles of pochapter and live unhappily ever afterward.

A well known resident of this city, and unselfishness and duty and labor which imparted to his discourses that practical comfort and strength which was so closely blended with

of his charm lay in his character, and which was so closely blended with their beauty and dignity of form. It was indeed an intellectual as well as a religious delight to listen to the loftiness, the eloquence, the fervor with which he enforced and illustrated the great fundamental truths of honor and duty, of love and faith, of life and death. His was a mind stored with all the riches of a ripe and profound scholarship, from ripe and profound scholarship, from which he draw with readiness to embellich and uplift the most sordid or common theme.

The life that he lived, dwelling in that parsonage, and expounding in that parsonage, and expounding the truth in that Brick Church, was indeed an ideal one. He was near enough to the haunts of men to keep in touch with their spiritual needs and experiences, but at the same time he could withdraw himself from the world and repair to that source of all real spiritual progress and upbuilding - meditation and solitude. It was a noble spectacle that he prewaited breathlessly upon his every

When the church at large to which he was so devotedly attached insisted that his talents ought not to be exercised in a sphere so restricted and demanded that his learning and scholarship should be used in the training and education of its ministry, he transferred his activities to the larger field of usefulness. But his heart and his affections ever turned to the old Brick Church and 'parsonage where he passed the happiest, the serenest, the most peaceful years of his noble, his beautiful, his sanoti-

There, it was fitting that he should at last be laid at rest. And there, it is fitting that ever and anon the memory of his life and work should be renewed and perpetuated among the people whom he loved so well and served so faithfully.

Yours most sincerely.
WILLIAM VANAMER.

A NOVEL PLEA FOR MERCY. t "Drunk and Disorderly" is Let of Because Panishments do Him No

James Pugh, an old offender was arrested, last night, for intoxication and disorderly conduct. When arraigned before the Recorder, this morning, he pleaded guilty, but argued that as he had been fined renestedly and had "done time" for the offense without producing any good results, it might be a good idea to try the effect of allowing him to go without imposing sentence, promising that if he again appeared before the Recorder he would take a 'double dose'' without a murmar. He was discharged with this under standing.
